parliamentarians make required contributions in accordance with the applicable required contribution rate with the government covering the balance of the current service cost

"we're shutting down hundreds of these every couple of months," he says, though in some cases the publisher has trouble taking effective action against sites in other countries.